Press release

TUI Cruises and HYPOXI® continue its cooperation

Wals-Siezenheim, August 2017

The cruise ship industry is booming. TUI Cruises increases their fleet of "feelwell ships" and the new flagship is due to set sail in early 2018. HYPOXI® will be on board again.

The HYPOXI-Method® is well accepted from the passengers, confirms Pia Horn, Sports Manager of TUI Cruises:

»Thanks to the "premium all-inclusive concept" on board of the "Mein Schiff" fleet from TUI Cruises, there is an extensive range of food and drink as well as a wide range of SPA & sports activities. High-quality extra offers, such as the exclusive HYPOXI-Method®, complete the offer on board and strengthen the premium claim we have.«

To meet the special requirements of a cruise company HYPOXI® has developed a tailored support program for TUI Cruises.

From the planning and adoption of the system to the particular spatial conditions on board of the ships, the training & education for the crew of the Sport & Spa team to a maintenance interval according route planning, nothing is left to chance.
